Check out these workshops at the 2015 Alaska Anthropological Association Meeting

The Alaska Consortium of Zooarchaeologists presents a workshop on biogeography with Dr. Lee Lyman.

The Anchorage Museum presents a workshop on field research design with Mrs. Kelly Gwynn and Dr. Lisa Schwartzburg.

Both workshops are on Wednesday, 4 March.

For more information on these workshops, see page 10.
Dear members,

The membership should be proud of the Board of Director’s accomplishments of the last two years. The Board has done an excellent job of working on membership business.

One of the main tasks has been to review and analyze the Association’s finances. To this end we have done a comprehensive review of the last 10 years financial records.

Now we have the ability to analyze past spending and develop a long-term financial management plan. We have passed the 2015 Budget and have a proposed 2016 Budget to present at the upcoming Annual General Membership Business Meeting on Saturday afternoon, 7 March, of the conference.

The Board has been reviewing the AJA and Aurora Series publications. We have been working on having legally defensible copyright transfer documents prior to putting the out-of-print Aurora Series volumes for sale (as electronic downloads) on our website.

We also completed a comprehensive inventory of the AJA and Aurora Series volumes that were stored in three locations, which was part of our journal cost analysis and general review of all expenses of the Association.

The Board has reviewed and passed a series of Board Resolutions covering everything from financial issues to governance issues. For example, the State of Alaska Department of Commerce Non-Profit Biennial Report required a Board Resolution to name a Vice-President for the purposes of their report.

The Biennial Report has been filed and accepted.

Also, the Board is considering a review and probable rewrite of the By-laws and appendices based on the evolving duties of the officers. We are in the process of documenting the actual duties of the officers.

I hope to see you all at the 2015 Alaska Anthropological Association Meetings at the Anchorage Hilton Hotel. We’ve got quite the line up of workshops and sessions this year, spanning all four fields of anthropology with wonderful content in theoretical as well as applied anthropology and archaeology!

And please consider attending the upcoming Annual General Membership Business Meeting as we have a number of presentations on the business of the Association.

GIS and archaeological technicians wanted for NRULA summer fieldwork

Northern Land Use Research Alaska, LLC (NLURA) would like to take this opportunity to notify you of the upcoming 2015 field season. Currently, we are hiring for GIS Specialists and Archaeological Technicians. Project-specific roles for these positions include: Field Technician, Assistant Crew Chief, Crew Chief, Crew Coordinator, Data Management Technician, and Data Management Specialist. While project details are presently limited, the anticipated dates of employment are mid-May through October.

To apply, or for more information regarding employment opportunities with NLURA, please visit our website at http://www.northernlanduse.com/employment. If you have already applied with us this year, please be sure to keep us updated on your availability by emailing your schedule restrictions to Human.resources@northernlanduse.com.

We look forward to the potential of working with you during the 2015 field season!

Post-graduate fieldschool “Change and Continuation in the Arctic”

Change and Continuation in the Arctic is field school opportunity for post-graduates organized jointly by CIRCLA, UArctic, and ARC. The main theme of the summer school in 2015 will be the negotiation and practices of change in the Arctic.

Social science studies suggest that the interests of different actors often contradict one another between the local, national and regional levels of decision-making. The ambition is to address these controversies in an analytical manner and to create a learning platform from which to discuss the possible exchange of knowledge and ideas.

The CIRCLA-UArctic-ARC Summer School on ‘Change and Continuation in the Arctic’ aims to:

- Inspire young/aspiring researchers to think trans-culturally about differing visions of Arctic development.
- Address private sector involvement in the Arctic, especially concerning profits, benefits, environmental, and cultural concerns in connection with oil and mineral exploitation.
- Explore social exclusion and inclusion with a focus on participatory democracy, public involvement, as well as indigenous expressions of community belonging, ownership and citizenship rights.
- Inspire discussions of modernization and traditional ways of life.
- Assist young/aspiring researchers in engaging with each other and with established experts.

Continues on page 6.
The summer school is open to ‘post-graduates’ – i.e. any early career applicant with a relevant MA degree, including PhD students from within the social and human sciences.

Participants’ travel costs, board and lodging will be fully (or, if excessive: partially) financed by the school.

Applications are due 9 April, 2015. You may apply online at: http://goo.gl/forms/COk4Be0q4x.

OHA/SHPO annual workshop

21 April, 8am-4:30pm
BP Energy Center: 1014 Energy Court, Anchorage, 99508
Free and open to the public

The Office of History and Archaeology and the State Historical Preservation Office are holding their annual workshop on 21 April, 2015 at the BP Energy Center.

This workshop will be useful and relevant to a variety of cultural resource and historic preservation professionals working in the State of Alaska. We welcome and encourage all to participate, including Federal, State, and local government agency representatives, Tribes & representatives of Alaska Native Organizations, project proponents, consultants, and others.

HABS/HAER Submission Guidelines Updates, AHRS Updates, Upcoming Anniversaries Discussion, Documenting Alaska’s Maritime Resources, Current Issues in Section 106, Panel Discussion: Disaster Preparation, Management, and Response for Cultural Resource Professionals, other Program Updates and Relevant Topics

April 21, ~5:00pm, Kinley’s Restaurant & Bar
3230 Seward Highway

Please join us for a no-host networking and social gathering!
To register, contact Sylvia Elliott at 907-269-8724 or sylvia.elliott2@alaska.gov.

Flint-knapping workshop

Saturday and Sunday April 18 and 19
12-3pm both days
Anchorage Museum

Cost: $170 for Anchorage Museum members/ $190 for non-members. What to bring: Your enthusiasm!
Sign up at anchoragemuseum.org starting the first of March.
If you are interested in learning more about the Public Education Group, we are organizing an informal lunch during the AAAS! Meet us for lunch on Thursday, 5 March at noon at the Glacier Brewhouse. Please RSVP by email so I can get an idea of how many people to expect.

Making Archaeology Public (MAP) Project

2016 marks the 50th anniversary of the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA). The SAA, SHA, and RPA are in partnership with the American Cultural Resources Association and the Archaeological Legacy Institute are supporting an initiative called the Making Archaeology Public (MAP) Project.

MAP archaeologists in each state work to answer the question: What are the most important insights into life in the past that we have gained from CRM archaeology? The end product will be series of short videos linked through an interactive map of the United States. A viewer will be able to click on a state to see what cool stuff we’ve learned in that state or browse a set of topics or key words and select videos to watch.

Burr Neely (NLURA, LLC) is leading the working group to create the Alaska video. The working group is looking for volunteers, and is very interested in your ideas for a video. Please send ideas to bjn@northernlanduse.com.

Archaeology Month Poster

Before you know it, the 2015 Archaeology Month poster will be showing up in your mailboxes! Jeff Rasic is working with the same fabulous artist as last year. If you or your organization is interested in helping the NPS defray the cost of mailing materials or postage, please contact Jeff at Jeff_Rasic@nps.gov or 907-750-7356.

If you are traveling to the SAAs this year, don’t forget to vote for last year’s great Denbigh poster in the poster contest!

Outdoor Week Volunteers Needed May 12-15!

The BLM and the Anchorage School District are putting on the 41st Annual Outdoor Week at the Campbell Tract, and that means I’m looking for volunteers to staff the Archaeology station. This is a great opportunity to reach a few hundred sixth graders and teach them about prehistory and atlatls!

Volunteers are needed from 9am - 1:30pm 12-15 May. For more information, please contact Jenny Blanchard at the BLM: 907-267-1341 or jblanchard@blm.gov.

Recent Publications
Richard Stern, Association member

The purpose of this column is to bring recent publications in the field of Alaska anthropology to the attention of Newsletter readers. Alaska anthropology is defined broadly to include the traditional four-field approach of anthropology subject matter. The Alaska region is similarly broadly defined to include Alaska, neighboring Canada, the Northwest Coast, Siberia, and more generally, the circumpolar North. Publications include published books, journal articles, web pages, unpublished reports (“grey literature”), or other information which may be of interest. Readers are encouraged to share publications which come to their attention with this column.

Please submit any recent publications you know of that may be of interest to our members to Richard at ros@northernlanduse.com.

2015 aaa Workshops

Alaska Consortium of Zooarchaeologists Workshop

University of Alaska Anchorage, Beatrice McDonald Hall 123, Wednesday, 4 March, 9:30-11:40am, 1-4:40pm.

Lunch not provided.

The Alaska Consortium of Zooarchaeologists workshop is on understanding the processes and patterns of Biogeography in the archaeology labs at the University of Alaska Anchorage.

Learn how anthropogenic impacts on the environment can be seen in the archaeological record, contemplate factors that influence the distribution of organisms, participate in exercises to practice data gathering and analysis, and take in a little something about Taphonomy and Applied Paleozoology/Conservation Paleozoology in the remodeled labs at the University of Alaska Anchorage campus in the Beatrice McDonald Hall.

Their guest presenter this year is Dr. R. Lee Lyman from the Department of Anthropology at the University of Missouri.

Cultural Research Methods Workshop

Hilton, Spruce Room
Wednesday, 4 March, 9am-2pm

Are you feeling culturally conflicted? Anthropologically apathetic? We can help. Join cultural anthropologists, Dr. Lisa Schwarzburg, and Kelly Gwynn, M.A. for some hands-on instruction and assistance with your research project.

Topics to be covered: IRB, methodology, grants, data analysis, and what to do when things don’t turn out like you imagined they would.

Also included in the workshop is a fantastic bibliography on where and how best to start your very own research project.

What to bring: your computer, your research interests, and a snack.

Lithic Flintknapping Workshop

University of Alaska Anchorage, Beatrice McDonald Hall 124, Wednesday, 4 March, 10:20am-noon, 1-4:40pm.

Enthusiasts, lithic analysts, and those interested in watching stone-tool production in action are invited to participate in our workshop on special techniques in flintknapping.

Join Eugene Gryba, professional archaeologist and flintknapper, who will demonstrate techniques from his extensive experience in flaking techniques and strategies for microblade production and biface reduction, including fluting-based methods of basal thinning.

The workshop is intended to serve as a forum in which archaeologists researching and interested in prehistoric lithic technology can raise technological questions for discussion with Eugene and fellow scholars.

We invite experienced knappers to participate and share their knowledge, however, no experience is required and spectators are welcome.

Participants are asked to bring gloves and safety glasses, and if possible their own tools and raw materials to contribute. To practice fine pressure flaking and specialized techniques, heat-treated materials are recommended.

OPENING RECEPTION
Anchorage Museum, 625 C Street, Anchorage, 99501
Wednesday, 4 March, 7-9pm

The reception will be in the atrium of the Alaska Museum on the evening of March 4th. The Smithsonian Arctic Studies Center exhibit will be left open for us that evening. https://www.anchoragemuseum.org/exhibits-events/permanent-exhibits/alaska-native-culture/. There will be appetizers and beverages and you can pick up your packets, or register for the meetings. Parking will be available in the garage at the museum.

Anthropology of Alaska Two Minutes at a Time
Organizer: Deborah Blanchard
Wednesday Evening Reception, Anchorage Museum

Back by popular demand! This session provides a survey of anthropological research in Alaska over the past year, from Pleistocene archaeology to historical archaeology and cultural anthropology.

Papers will be short and fun; this is a chance to give a “teaser” of research presented in the conference, or to provide information on an artifact, site, or fieldwork story encountered last summer. It provides presenters with a chance to pique the audience’s interest in their research, and provides audience members a chance to get an overview of the entire scope of conference topics, even if they can’t attend every session.

AWARDS BANQUET
Hilton Hotel
Friday, 6 March, 7pm.
Speaker: Mark Nuttall

Mark Nuttall is a Professor and Henry Marshall Tory Chair of Anthropology at the University of Alberta. Dr. Nuttall’s specializes in the effect of climate change upon Arctic communities, and more particularly on the ways that regional, political, and cultural textures inform responses. His recent books include Pipeline Dreams: People, Environment, and the Arctic Energy Frontier, and an edited volume Society, Environment and Place in Northern Regions.

BELZONI SOCIETY ANNUAL MEETING
Swing Bar at Chilkoot Charlie’s, 2435 Spenard Road, Anchorage, 99503
Saturday, 7 March, 7-9pm
21+ years only

Come join us for the unofficial finale of the annual Alaska Anthropological Association meetings at the World Famous Chilkoot Charlie’s Bar in the heart of one of Anchorage’s quirkiest neighborhoods: Spenard. For over 30 years now, the Belzoni Society has met every Saturday at the end of the conference to celebrate, bond, and let off some steam!

As always, there will be the sacred reading from the Tome of Belzoni; followed by the best awards ceremony of the year. Start thinking about who you wish to nominate for the “Last of the Red Lovers” or the “Boondoggle Award,” and all the other awards! If you’re a first-timer, no worries. We’ll explain the rules at the beginning of the evening.

There will be some titillating prizes for the auction this year – bring cash! And remember that the Belzoni Society hosts the most critical of fundraisers each year: All money raised by the Society goes to pay our community bar tab at the end of the night!

Remember to celebrate responsibly! We encourage carpooling, arranging for designated drivers, or bringing enough cash for a cab ride back to your bed!
